MR. WILLIE'S SPEECH

Able commentators will discuss the acceptance address last Saturday of Republican nominee Wendell Willkie. Our readers after listening to the hour's talk, was that it was a typical Alf Landon speech. It is evident that Willkie listened to Landon more than to other Republican leaders when it came to shaping his policies.

It will be remembered that in the 1936 campaign, Landon argued to the major tenets of the New Deal and promised to keep up the Roosevelt reforms. Saturday, Mr. Willkie did not indicate that he was for abandoning the New Deal. He merely wants to administer the New Deal.

No one doubts that Mr. Willkie is an able and resourceful business man, but he will need all of the resources of his mind to convince his own adopted party of the necessity of the political platform set forth in his speech last Saturday. His views are in direct conflict with those of leading Republicans in Congress.

For example, were the Republicans to gain control of and organize the next Congress, such men as Senator Hiram Johnson and Arthur Vandenberg, and Representative Hamilton Fish, these men are on record with views greatly in conflict with those of the nominee. Willkie paralleled the New Deal foreign policy, but Vandenberg and Johnson are renowned isolationists. Mr. Willkie has the immediate task of winning his own party into line.

As to the other great thing that the public wanted to find out about Mr. Willkie... will he be a match for "the champ" at radio crooning? The answer is hardly yes. The Republican nominee has better radio technique than Landon, and equal to the average run of public speakers.

As that doesn't put him in the class of the master crooner, we don't think that Willkie would probably win in a rough and tumble political debate with F. D. R., but he'll have to improve to be able to match "the champ" at the mike!

330 A MONTH
The United States Senate has adopted the Lee amendment to the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill which will provide, if the general measure is passed, that base pay for a private in the United States Army shall be $30 a month instead of the present $21, although the $21 will be paid for the first four months of training.

This is held to compare more equitably with Navy pay which, after a short training period, begins at $14 a month. It is to be remembered that these pay rates are in addition to food, clothing, shelter, and medical care, which make them equivalent to several times the amount in civilian life.

One other comparison was made, by which it appeared that conscription certainly was one of the things that the civilian conservation corps pays $30 a month to boys of the Army age, making it more a service than the military service. This could have been remedied by reducing the CCC pay to $21 instead of by adding an estimated $100,000 or more to the outlay for military personnel during the remainder of 1940.

Over 200,000 crowded Elwood, Ind., last Saturday to hear acceptance address of Wendell Willkie. Roosevelt confers with Canadian prime minister on mutual defense problems. James River reached flood stage of 25 feet Sunday in Richmond. Appomattox merchants will gladly handle your country produce. Richmond daily paper poll of Virginia voters shows Willkie in lead. Appomattox needs boosters.

South Boston Tobacco Festival September 5-6

South Boston, Va., August 21.—In a little over two weeks thousands of people from all parts of the United States will crowd this little Southside Virginia town for tobacco co's official celebration to be held September 5 and 6.

With its inception in 1934 as a local club sponsored golden jubilee show, South Boston has seen the rise to international prominence of the National Tobacco Festival, now generally recognized as a "tobacco" official annual celebration and one of the most widely publicized events in the United States.

Its success has been due mainly to the untiring efforts of community leaders, and to the innumerable citizen committees and women, who have coordinated community effort into a festival system almost inseparable in the annals of organized social events. As the 1940 festival approaches, 30 committees with over 300 members, backed by South Boston's dynamic planning director, W. B. Harbour, has made ready for over 150,000 people, who will witness what perhaps has been the largest and best festival show ever presented.

A $6,000 outdoor historic pageant will be the outstanding feature at South Boston on September 5 and 6. National Tobacco Festival officials secured the services of T. M. Wright, nationally known playwright-producer, and his partner, Howard Wright, of the school of Drama of New York University, to write and produce the pageant. Early in the summer they ready the beautiful natural outdoor theatre where for two nights the pageant will be presented.

The 10th annual gathering of the Grand United Order of Moose will be held at Charlotte Court House on next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Delegates are asked to send their names in at once to Dr. J. Murray Jeffers, Charlotte Court House, Va.

The annual revival service will be held at the Mount Pleasant Baptist church this Sunday at the regular preaching hour. Rev. Singleton, newly elected pastor of the church, will conduct the week of service. All members of the Galilee Sunday School are asked to report at 10:30 Sunday morning.

Professor D. B. Delaney of Salisbury, N. C., is spending some time here with his mother, Mrs. Lady Delaney.

Misses Helen and Grace McDaniell of New York spent the week-end here with their parents, deacon and Mrs. J. W. McDaniell.

Reverends Agnew and Statem and R. Q. Lavette, of the Appomattox Baptist church, spent the week-end in Baltimore and New York. Mrs. Charles Jackson of W. Va. is visiting her sister, Mrs. Eddie Patterson.

Appomattox plays Buena Vista there this Saturday. Try a Classified Ad. Churchill addresses Parliament on war progress. England willing to lease bases in Caribbean to United States. Vote in Congress on conscription to be close. Italy reported massing army for attack on Greece.

Constant Ration Aids the Production of Milk.
By DR. GEO. E. TAYLOR
Discontinuance of grain feeding of cows on pasture is somewhat akin to the goose that has laid golden eggs. Yet many a dairy farmer stops grain feeding at once when he sees his cows increase their milk flow under the stimulus of luxurious pasture rich in protein, minerals and vitamins. To make so radical a change in ration is to make a costly mistake.

Dairy cattle on good pasture will gain on grain for possibly three to four weeks, but they will lose weight in the process. This loss of body weight will be followed by a reduction in milk production. Even with renewed grain feeding, it will be difficult to restore production once it has been allowed to slump. Continued feeding of grain and a limited amount of hay until the cows are turned on pasture are recommended to the change in their ration. That amount of grain to be fed will depend upon the quality and amount of available pasture and the level of milk production.

Good pasture alone will provide sufficient nutrients for body maintenance and the production of 10 to 20 more pounds of milk, depending upon the per cent of fat in the milk. New Jersey experiment station feeding trials demonstrated that the 1/2 pounds of milk maintained the 1/2 pounds of grain. Under average feeding conditions, however, a more liberal allowance of grain is usually recommended for the entire pasture season. One seven pounds of milk produced should be sufficient. The higher allowance requires the more liberal feeding of grain in proportion to the amount of milk produced.

Since the protein content of green pasture is higher than that of winter, the protein content of the summer grain mixture can be reduced. A concentrate grain mixture containing 12 per cent crude protein will supply ample protein for cows on excellent pasture, usually high producers excepted. Grains as corn, barley and oats contain about 12 per cent crude protein.

"During summer, cows should have free access to a mineral mixture of equal parts salt and steamed bone meal."
